

EMBASSY OF THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
Beijing, China

AMBASSADOR

August 28, 2009

To the Participants in Greentech: A Call to Action:

As China and the United States both strive to create sustainable and green solutions to drive economic growth, the rapidly developing greentech market offers a tremendous commercial opportunity for American companies.

Greentech: A Call to Action is a timely and practical example of how the United States, China, and other nations can work together to address the challenges of climate change. The conference provides a unique platform for policymakers, leading technology companies, investors, and non-governmental organizations to advance the development of the greentech market. Promoting this emerging market is a priority both for President Obama and myself. These technologies carry the promise of sustainable economic growth that will preserve the natural environment, generate jobs, boost investment, and improve energy security not only for Americans but for all who share this planet.

I welcome the conference's focus on formulating specific action plans for developing the greentech market, and I look forward to working with the American Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai, the Asia Society, and all of the conference partners and attendees on this important effort. I congratulate all of you for answering the call.

With best personal regards.

Most sincerely yours,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jon M. Huntsman, Jr." with a stylized flourish at the end.

Jon M. Huntsman, Jr.