

As the Regional Managing Principal for Greater China, Xiaomei leads Gensler's growth and development in the region, spearheading the best in design excellence strategies across its diverse practice areas.

Recognized by Fast Company as one of "The World's Most Innovative Companies" Xiaomei also serves as a key contributor in Gensler in what is acknowledged as the most admired and largest architecture firm in the world.

With close to 25 years of architectural and design experience, she has directed a significant list of projects, often on a complex scale, spanning urban design and master planning, tall building architecture, renewal and repositioning, mixed-use, retail, hospitality, education, health and wellness, art and culture and most recently airports and sports. Notable in this portfolio is Xiaomei's leadership in delivering China's tallest building, the renowned and highly awarded 632-meter-high Shanghai Tower, a landmark on the city's skyline today.

In recognition of her innovation and business leadership, Xiaomei served on the Gensler Board of Directors and serves on Global Management Committee.
